HILLTOPICS

BY DON BELL

It is a rather odd occasion when a Herald editor sits down to write his final "hilltopping" and knows that the final word will signify the "harrowing" end of a year's service on the paper. This year I have made gentle fun of Western students, but to be honest, I have enjoyed their most of their personalities of which they are unaware. In the "medium of satire," I have tried to bring into focus some of the many facets of students, the events and actions in the lives of college students that appear in a new story. These sometimes humorous events are important in the overall picture of Western, as are the things that make head lines, but they also make headlines within themselves. There are many other colors and shadings that go into making the glorious picture of Western that is the year 1954. This is the news and misadventures that are not noticed without a close observation. To find them it is best to examine Western... What is Western? It is coffee, conversation and cards in the Beach Bar, the sun sinking over the stadium, all night bus sessions in a dormitory, the flaming beauty of College Heights in the Spring, and the mood, mood, and sentiment in the gymnasium during a ball game. It is composed of between class speakers on the front steps of Cherry Hall, Dorothea moments from the library, tired feet after a dance, turned crumbs and dirty white boots. Western is a venture into the land of the classmate wearing blue with those who have never seen their home town or been on the McLean Hall patio and a breakfast of coffee and conversation. The love and preparation for future life given in the classroom undoubtedly makes bold strokes on the minds of those who do not realize that this is a life which leads the way to successful living with other people. There are clear colors of informal conference with the full blown intellectual, the short silence of the thrilled human beings, of upbringings who know how to bury the process of growing up together in the fun and banter of admiration and moral exhilaration of the room-mate who is experienced in the art of living in a dormitory with others. They are the people who are home friends who is willing to patiently listen to a problem. The strokes are made also by campus leaders who excel in particular fields and are well known for it, but also important are the people who make Western such a pleasant place. Perhaps their position on the Western campus would be better understood if they could learn the love of their college teaching. Their love for the campus is that of this campus is Maurice Utley's good hour mood, Louis May's laugh over the counter at the Beach Bar, Bob Bregman's willingness to buy anyone and everyone a cup of coffee and the kindliness which seems to generate from Al McPherson, Carl Davis' brightness, the colorful words, the mood, mood, thrilling and extraordinary, deliquescent and subdued, all are essential. The air at Western is often charged with exciting events, but at the same time common things are happening that are will leave a permanent impression on the minds and hearts of Western students.

Now that the final piece of copy has been taken to the Daily News and the last cut has been ordered for the May 21 issue of the paper, I would like to express my thanks to the people who have helped me during the past year. My editor is due to Bob Cochran, who is served as my advisor, chum, friend and as the occasion arises, mentor; to Miss Francis Stevens, who is the best of the best and a joy to work with; to Charles Colburn, Carl Davis, Grace, Joy and Jackie for the help with the morning and evening paper. I also deeply appreciate the fine work done by my staff and Mr. Jackson, Paul Bonnin, Oliver and others.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to Judy Koch Bicker, last year's editor, who introduced me to theabella society, the people, the mood, the campus, the house and the campus and the girl who has served as my chief inspiraller and critic.

A Graduation Question

Where do we go from here? This question will be asked many times in the next month by commencement speakers, teachers and individual students. It was probably asked by the first commencement speaker to the graduating class of the first college. Because of its age and frequent use, it may seem trite to some, but when seriously considered, it is as fresh and pertinent as it was the first time it was uttered.

Where do we go from here? Are we plunging into a world already doomed to destruction by nuclear war, will our freedom of democracy already been choked by the weeds of totalitarianism? The answers to these and all the other questions of the day will elude us until we have thought through the common problems that face the whole of mankind.

This challenge must be met by us because we are the ones equipped to meet it. By providing ourselves with a college education we have been raised above the mundane crowd and have shown that, for us, life is an intriguing experience full of dragons to be conquered and forces to be overcome, some of which we have found a bit easier than others, but all of us have accepted the responsibility. We are the symbol of hope and progress to the world.

Where do we go? We are prepared. It is up to us to deliver for ourselves the whole heartedly or with confidence and eagerness.

A Great Loss To Western

Both Western and Bowling Green feel a severe loss at the death of H. B. Gray, who served as dean of Western summer schools for the past ten years, and also as dean of the senior and junior high schools from 1934-1951. Mr. Gray, who graduated from Western in 1923, was appointed to this position in 1934 and was elected president of the Alumni Association last November at Remmenga. He was to have been honored at a special alumni lunch on next Friday.

As an educator he was a tribute to Western, and as a human being, a community leader of the state of Kentucky. He served as chairman of the creative arts division of the Kentucky Education Association for the past three years and was a former president of the Bowling Green Kentucky School Athletic Association.

Mr. Gray has also left a tribute to himself, his home Bowling Green Community College. Mr. Gray's death is a great loss to Western and Bowling Green. One half of the Western student body and alumni, the Herald extends our deepest sympathy to his family.

Summer Theatre Workshop Offered For First Time

Western is offering, for the first time, a summer theatre workshop, based upon the educational concept that students learn best by doing. Instruction will take the form of regular practice in acting, design, lighting, voice, make-up, and other technical work. Activities of the class will be related to a full season of public productions, the number to be determined by the number of enrolled students as well as class demonstrations.

In Educational Theatre, as in any form of theatre, the student cannot learn by reading a textbook or by listening to a lecture, as normal participant. Whether he is stagewear or learning to act, he must have the opportunity to get upon a stage and try. In planning the activities of the course, in addition to the weekly production classes in acting and production techniques, field trips for observation of theatre activities for the summer will be included. Already suggested for some of these field trips are productions at the Citadel Theatre in Nashville, the Knoxville Little Theatre, and Meva's The Wilderness Room.

Class demonstrations and activities will include both center stage and side stage stage work, and production assignments. Students may enroll for nine hours of college credit courses in the Western Theatre field. Speech Fundamentals (3 hours), Oral Interpretation (3 hours), and Summer Theatre Workshop (3 hours). Other summer course work, not connected with the theatre, are available to all students.

All students of the Summer Theatre Workshop will have the opportunity to participate in at least one major production during the eight week period.

Herald Reporter Gives Look at Newly Remodeled President's Home

Mr. Grandpa West, of the Chester Press newspaper in California, gave a glimpse of the interior of the presidential suite of the University of California, which was recently remodeled.

The suite consists of a living room, dining room, and private quarters for the president. The living room is furnished with comfortable couches and chairs, and a colorfully decorated ceiling. The dining room features a large table and chairs, and a fireplace. The private quarters include a bedroom and bathroom.

Mr. Grandpa West noted that the remodeling work was done by the students of the University's architecture department. The new furnishings were designed to complement the historic architecture of the building, and the work was completed on schedule.

The remodeled suite will be used by the president and his family for official functions and social events. The students involved in the project were proud of their work, and the president expressed his appreciation for the efforts of the students and staff involved in the project.

The Herald Reporter article includes a photograph of the suite, which is available for viewing online.

Western Expansion, Renovation Program

by Bess Cowden

Topping the list of projects slated to get underway in the near future is the $120,000 expansion and renovation program at the hospital. When the scheduled work is completed, the hospital will be completely renovated and equipped to take care of the present load, including the two new dormitories for men now under construction and the remodeled rooms for women which may be built in the future.

Scheduled for early summer is a renovation of the Faculty Staff Hall for girls. The interior of this building will be painted, plastered repaired, and floors re-worked, along with other necessary remodeling. The library is also on the list for extensive remodeling. This project will get started early in June. The library is designed to house some 10,000 volumes and allied publications. At present the capacity is being taxed which calls for some rearranging of the building to utilize the existing space to better advantage.

The gymnasium at the Training School is in the process of being replaced and improved. Repairing and modernizing the facilities and offices in the Physical Education department have been completed.

An additional parking lot designed to alleviate somewhat the critical parking problem on College Heights is completed.

The president's house has received a complete overhaul. Both the exterior and interior from top to bottom have been re-worked by campus workmen, receiving major repairs.

The entrance to the driveway entering the campus from the road is being widened to make for easier turns for vehicles approaching from the west. The two new dormitories for men which are being constructed at a cost of over $20,000, are progressing rapidly. These two dormitories at a corner of Normal Drive and 4th Street, will be completed in time for the expected See next semester. One of the new dormitories will be opened by the opening of the fall semester next September.

The program of replacing Shirley Hall, the old women's dormitory and adding and modernizing the Campus has been completed with the completion of the planned program for chemical feed. The concrete work on the campus has been underway for the past several weeks.

"SMALL ENOUGH TO KNOW YOU — BIG ENOUGH TO SERVE YOU"
Tops In Sports

by Jack Saphol

I'm sure everyone has heard the old saying, "You can't judge a book by its cover." This is definitely true in the case of the Western football team, thanks to Jack Clayton, Turner Ehrich and Frank Griffen.

When I was in Western, very few football players ever graduated and no two seemed to be lying along Potter Hall's足迹 as a college athlete. At that time my coaches—both the assistant and the head man—were not very long. But they already had a plan in mind.

Three years ago things began to happen. Lewis Ehrich took over as head coach of the boilermakers, but for the next three years he guided not only the football team but also the entire student body. He was an experienced coach and the student body. He was an experienced coach and his men who did not maintain scholarship standards were released from the team. Accidentally two all-OVC players were released that year.

Last year the coaches began to get results. There were a few changes on the team as athletes had no idea what they wanted to do. Thanks again to the hard work and the guidance of Coaches Ehrich and Griffen they all graduated and during their senior year they all had a standing of B.

By now it was easy for them to study. The team was quiet at night as the players were getting ready for the next game. The environment had improved and the players had a chance to do well in school and be around a such a nice team to learn from.

The freshmen has been selected since.
