CLUB HAPPENINGS

Ad Club
The Ad Club is off to a booming start this semester. The chapter has already enrolled 49 active members and hopes to get a membership of at least 100 people. The chapter, which is a member of the American Advertising Federation, has set up its own advertising agency. Greg Herschel is the director.

Dues for the Ad Club will be $16 until October 5, but will increase as the year goes on. If you have any questions about the Ad Club, stop by 313 or 314 Gordon Wilson Hall.

PRSSA
On September 22, the Bluegrass Chapter of PRSSA held the tenth annual professional development workshop in Louisville. The theme of the workshop was "Results You Can Measure."

The sessions gave step-by-step examples of the processes used in fundraising, developing special events, and the do's and don'ts in desktop publishing.

Nine members of the Kelly Thompson Chapter of PRSSA attended.

SDX
The Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, will be having a fundraising raffle beginning the first week of October.

Booths will be set up in DUC and in Garrett for people to buy chances on free dinners, sporting goods, movie tickets, etc. The chances will cost 50 cents a piece or three for $1. The drawing will take place the end of October.

Sigma Delta Chi hopes to raise between $500 - $600 by having the raffle.

Photo
The student chapter of the National Press Photographers Association will be conducting its eleventh annual Mountain Peoples Workshop October 6-8.

The workshop, which will be held in Russell Springs, Ky., is designed to help the student photographers complete picture stories on assigned subjects, work on shooting techniques and storytelling skills.

The assisting staff will include: Jack Corn, Director of Photography, The Chicago Tribune; Dave Davenport, Editor and Publisher of the Times Journal; Russell Springs; Dave LaBelle, photojournalist-in-residence, WKU; Bill Luster, Pulitzer-prize winning photojournalist for the Louisville Courier-Journal; Michael L. Morse, Chairman of photojournalism program, WKU, and the workshop director; Larry Nightswander, illustrations editor for the National Geographic World Magazine; George Thompson, photojournalist for The Chicago Tribune.
