Fingers walk, mouths talk, $3,000 raised

A big “THANK YOU” goes out to all alumni who donated in excess of $3,000 in the annual phoneathon.

The university-wide phoneathon raises money for campus departments and is conducted by students.

The ad club received a plaque for the most money raised per caller.

Brigitte Sparks, ad club president who organized the phoneathon for the Journalism Department, and Department head Jo-Ann Albers attended a Halloween costume party at President Thomas Meredith’s home to celebrate the phoneathon’s success.

Brigitte dressed as an alligator and Ms. Albers dressed as an owl.

A thank you to all students who put their fingers to work to call. The students work and alumni’s contributions will benefit all students in the department.

Talisman begins selling 1991 books

Although it seems like the year has just started, the Talisman staff is already selling yearbooks for next year.

Stop by the Student Publications office to order one. Cost is $20 if you pick them up and $22 to be mailed.

The 1990 yearbooks “Think Big, Think Red” have arrived and are being distributed. Persons who haven’t received their copy should contact the Student Publications office. Students who ordered yearbooks to be mailed should receive them in December.

A waiting list for students who want a 1990 yearbook but didn’t order one has been started. See Managing Editor Billy Hardin to add your name to the list.

Class photos for the 1991 Talisman are being taken from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Nov. 12-16 in Downing University Center 230. There’s no sitting charge so stop by and get your face in the frame. Students who want to order a picture package may do so.

Herald staffers invade Washington; accept Regional Pacemaker award

Congratulations to the College Heights Herald which received a Regional Pacemaker at the National Associated Collegiate Press/College Media Advisers Convention in Washington D. C. last week.

Darla Carter, Chris Poore, Kim Hadley, Billy Hardin, Amy Taylor, Chris Poynter, Travis Green, Kaye Summers, John Martin, Tonya Bricking, Laura Howard, Jo Ann Thompson, and Bob Adams attended.

Mr. A conducted a session on student-adviser relationships and Darla Carter was a member of a panel that discussed recruiting minority students to newspaper staffs.

Travis Green received third place in the Business and Economic Writing competition. Dana Albrecht (1990 graduate) received second in the same category. Travis got $50 and a certificate for his accomplishment and Dana got $100 and a certificate.

Keep up the good work!
