Candidate for photo professor to speak to students and faculty

Dennis R. Dimick, illustration editor at National Geographic Society, is a candidate for the photojournalist-in-residence position that will open up at the end of the semester when Jack Corn retires, and will be on hand to speak to students and faculty on Monday, Jan. 30, at 7:30 p.m. in Garrett Room 103.

Photo sequence coordinator Mike Morse said the department will interview at least two candidates before making a decision.

Dimick, who has won numerous awards for his work, has also worked at The Courier-Journal and newspapers in Oregon and Washington. He has taught at Walla Walla College and was a guest lecturer at the University of Missouri Journalism School and Ohio University.

His interviews will continue on the following day.

Photo graduate undergoing therapy

Joey Carwile is recovering, but continuing to undergo therapy at Frazier Rehabilitation Center in Louisville after suffering injuries from a traffic accident Sept. 15 in Owensboro.

You can write to Joey at Frazier Rehab Center, 220 Abraham Flexner Way, Louisville, Ky. 40202.

The account established to help with some of his expenses will be closed Feb. 15 so the money collected can be given to his family. If you would like to contribute, make a check out to Friends of Joey Carwile and send it to JoAnn Thompson, 111 Garrett Center.

KPA seminar to focus on getting jobs

Professors Jim Highland and Harry Allen will be driving two vans to the Kentucky Press Association Employment Flying Shortcourse program, which will take place in Louisville on Friday.

The primary focus of the seminar will be on acquiring internships and jobs. Writing, graphic arts and photography workshops will also be held.

Editors from across the state, including David Hawpe from The Courier-Journal and Ron Jenkins from The Gleaner, are expected to attend.

Students interested in going can sign up on a list posted beside Harry Allen's office. There is limited space available.

The van will be leaving at 6 a.m. and students should expect to be back in Bowling Green by 8 p.m.

Herald goes on-line; names spring editors

The College Heights Herald leapt into the information age Jan. 12 as it went on-line. Besides allowing stories and photographs to be viewed via computer, Herald On-line gives students and faculty members opportunities to send letters and messages to section editors.

This semester's editorial board includes: Cara Anna, editor; Epha Good, news editor; Dennis Varney, news assistant editor; Joe Stefanchik, photo editor; Teak Phillips, photo assistant editor; Leslie Flynn, opinion page editor; Jennifer Provano and Catherine

Upcoming Events ...

- March 9 — Guest speaker, Jody Richards, speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives.

In the photo competition, Joe Howell, staff photographer for the Talisman Xposure, placed third. He (and the Journalism Department) will be getting $500.

Matt is the only the third Western writer to win a monthly contest. Angie Struck Mimms and Chris Poore were the other contest winners. He will compete in the national competition in San Francisco May 20-23.

Joe Stefanchik and Chris Obenchain are entrants in the second round of the photo contest.
Ad student to attend Chicago convention

Dawn Ballard has been chosen to attend the Direct Marketing Collegiate Institute Feb. 26-March 2 in Chicago. Dawn successfully competed against marketing and advertising students across the nation to garner a slot in the five-day seminar.

Students are chosen on the basis of their level of interest in advertising and marketing, extra-curricular activities, employment experience, recommendations from faculty, academic standing and writing ability.

Print major named Chips Quinn Scholar

Karen Brown has been named a Chips Quinn Scholar for 1995 by the Freedom Forum. She will participate in a three-day seminar at the Freedom Forum World Center in Arlington, Va., in May, and receive a summer internship at The Courier-Journal and a $1,000 scholarship.

Summer internships keep coming in

Since the end of last semester, summer internships have continued to come Western students' way. A partial list of this year's internships follows:

- Advertising — Erica Arvin, Madisonville Messenger; and Katresia Waters, Lexington Herald-Leader.
- Photojournalism — Craig Fritz, Sacramento Bee; Dana Johnson, Lexington Herald-Leader; and Ray Meese, Indianapolis Star. David O'Connor is working a spring internship at the Morning Call in Allentown, Pa.
- Print Journalism — Cara Anna, Cincinnati Enquirer; Karen Brown, The Courier-Journal; Jason Frakes, Franklin Favorite; Jim Hannah, Lexington Herald-Leader; Christa Ritchie, Crittenden Press; Tonya Root, Corbin News-Journal; Matt Tungate, Savannah (Ga.) Morning News; and Dennis Varney, Jackson (Tenn.) Sun.

Talisman Xposure working on deadline for second magazine

Talisman Xposure Editor Amethel Purdewell and her staff's first issue came out at the end of last semester, and the second of three magazines will come out in April.

The rest of the staff shapes up as follows: Rachel Griffith, managing editor; Craig Fritz, layout and design editor; Andy Frazier, art director; Kim Thomas, features editor; Tracy Albano, photo editor; Mark Brown, literary editor; James Gunnoe, assistant features editor; Sarah Brobst, assistant literary editor; Diane Bradford, assistant photo editor; Joe Howell, photographer; Patrick Witty, photographer; Andy C居然ro, photographer; Amanda Davis, writer; and Dana Hinkebein, writer.

The staff is still seeking to hire a sports editor and features writers.

Ad students enter national competition

Six ad campaigns created by Western students have been chosen for entry in the 1994-95 Student Advertising Competition sponsored by the American Academy of Advertising and the Newspaper Association of America Foundation. This year's topic is "Youth Violence."

The objective of the campaign is to help raise awareness of the problem youth and to provide positive solutions.

The six Western ads were created by Matt Anderson and Donna Tindler; Jennifer Moore and Lorri Oliver; Darrin Clayton; LaTonya Duffey; Tim Earnhart and Susan Grey; and Christy Feulner and Steve Chandler.

The students submitted their work on Dec. 15 for regional judging. Winning regional entries will be automatically entered in the national finals, and national winners will be announced by the end of this month. Winning entries will be distributed to newspapers nationwide for use as public-service advertising.

Ad major chosen for Nashville workshop

Joe Cromer has been accepted to the Buntin Creative Workshop. It is sponsored by Buntin Advertising Agency in Nashville and seeks to identify people with creative potential who want to work in an agency creative department, advertising sequence coordinator Carolyn Stringer said. The four-week sessions are conducted by Buntin's creative director. Joe competed with college and professional people in Tennessee and Kentucky for a slot in the workshop.

Other news (etc.)

- A reception honoring Theresa W. Gerard, longtime Garrett hostess, occurred Friday as Garrett Auditorium was renamed the Theresa W. Gerard Auditorium.
- The department is seeking volunteers for its mentor program. Any interested upperclassmen should contact Voletta Havener at 4143 as soon as possible.
- Any suggestions for information to put in The Link? Call Dennis Varney, editor, at 6011 or give info to Corban Goble, advisor. The next deadline is noon Thursday, Feb. 2.