ORGANIZATIONAL HISTORY

John W. Garrison ran a store in a mill house which he owned just northeast of his farmhouse, located on present-day Highway 1297 near the community of Polkville. Previously the mill had used a generator to produce stone-ground cornmeal and flour. The store was destroyed by fire in 1935. Toward the end of this particular account book, the store was known as the Garrison-Hendrick Store, named for Garrison and J.P. Hendrick.

COLLECTION NOTE

This collection consists of a large account book in which the client accounts of the John W. Garrison Store, later the Garrison-Hendrick Store, were recorded. The cover was removed from the ledger because of water damage and mold. Pages 1-22 are missing; the rest of the volume is intact. Some of the pages have been partially removed and portions of some pages were used for arithmetic lessons. Other pages have been marred with grease-like stains. The account book covers almost three full years of business transactions.
