COLLECTION NOTE

This collection is composed of testimonies taken from former Kentucky slaves during the 1930s and published in 1941. Note: these testimonies are also available online at the Library of Congress website: http://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mss/mesn.070

Interview topics include living conditions, work, clothing, religious customs, superstitions, and treatment from their masters. Former slaves tell positive and negative stories about their owners, playing with the master’s children, and the lifestyle of African Americans after emancipation. There are excerpts from African American sermons, folk songs, wills, and bills of sale for slaves as well. This information, along with narratives from several other states, was published in volume 16 of The American Slave: A Composite Autobiography, edited by George P. Rawick (Wesport, CT: Greenwood Publishing Company, 1972); Special Collections Library call number: E 441 .A58. Later, Applewood Books published the Kentucky section by itself as: Slave Narratives: A Folk History of Slavery in the United States From Interviews with Former Slaves (Bedford, MA: Applewood Books, 2006).
