BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

The Clements family was and continues to be a devout Catholic family. Early family documents tell of a group of Catholic settlers who emigrated from England to America in the mid to late 1600’s to escape religious persecution. These immigrant families first settled in the Maryland colony which had been founded as a haven for Catholics by Leonard Calvert, brother to the 2nd Lord Baltimore. However, religious intolerance continued in the Maryland colony and eventually forced many families to move farther west and to cross over the Allegheny Mountains to resettle in Kentucky. This group of colonists settled on Pottinger’s Creek in Kentucky and in 1792 they established the first Kentucky Catholic Church, Holy Cross.

William Clements was the first ancestor in Maryland to have known facts concerning his life. William was a Revolutionary War soldier in the Carolinas, serving with Francis Marion (“the Swamp Fox”), and after the war he returned to his home in Maryland and married Winifred Hardy. William and Winifred were the parents of Charles Overton “C.O.” Clements, who left Maryland for Kentucky in the 1830’s and married Susan Philpot. Charles Overton Clements served in the Mexican War under General Zachary Taylor and was present during one of the great battles in which the Mexican General LaVega, was captured. When his grandson was born, C.O. claimed the grandson reminded him of the old Mexican general, thus the name LaVega was given to his grandson.

LaVega Clements was the son of Samuel A. Clements and Laura (Wagoner) Clements. He was born on a farm near Philpot, Kentucky and had one brother, Frances “Marcellus” Clements and one sister, Genevieve Clements. LaVega attended public school in Daviess County, Kentucky and in Salisbury, Missouri where he lived with his uncle for a short period of time. He studied law in the Owensboro office of Judge Wilfred Carrico and was admitted to the bar in 1888, before his 20th birthday. Five years after admission to the bar, he was elected Prosecutor of the Police Court and held that office for four years, after which he was elected as County Attorney. LaVega held the office of County Attorney for 8 years and practiced law with Judge T.F. Birkhead until 1904. In 1912 he was appointed Master Commissioner and in 1922 was chosen Owensboro City Attorney. He served in that position for two years and was then elected for another term. He was a Democratic presidential elector from Kentucky in 1908 and was a district delegate to the Democratic National Convention in Baltimore in 1912. In the interim, he practiced law in Owensboro with Ben D. Ringo. LaVega was an energetic, outgoing man. Witty, urbane, learned and an entertaining orator, he was in great demand as a public speaker. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Rotary and Elks Clubs, holding numerous offices in these three organizations, and represented them at conventions in cities throughout the United States.

LaVega’s wife, Margaret (“Maggie”) Holmes Brown, was born in 1868 in Knottsville, Kentucky, the only child of Lucinda (Foster) Brown and Thomas Brown. Maggie was only three years old when her father died in 1871. Her mother taught school at St. Lawrence’s in Knottsville and continued to live with Maggie in the cabin that Thomas built for his bride. In 1877, when Maggie was nine years old, her mother married George William Sansbury. George and Lucinda had four children: Grace, Foster, Mati, and Sam. Between 1882 and 1886, Maggie attended Bethlehem Academy, a boarding-finishing school near Cecilia, Kentucky.

Maggie and LaVega’s courtship began in 1887, when LaVega was visiting relatives in Knottsville. Many letters were exchanged between the two and LaVega visited Maggie in Knottsville when he could. Maggie’s stepfather drove the stage coach between Owensboro and Knottsville, which made visiting easier. The couple married on 19 November 1890. Maggie was a shy, retiring woman who preferred to spend time at their Owensboro home, known as “Highland.” She was very religious and had a special devotion to the Blessed Mother and St. Joseph. She also had a remarkable memory and loved to read aloud and discourse with her family on religion, history, family connections and relationships. She sewed, mended clothing and loved to work in her garden, which was large and filled with roses and her favorites, red canna lilies.

LaVega and Maggie had nine children, six of whom survived to adulthood. They sent four sons to Notre Dame (South Bend, Indiana) and daughter Lucinda to Loretto/Webster College in St. Louis. When his son, Gerald, graduated from Notre Dame in 1915, LaVega formed the law firm of Clements and Clements, and Gerald joined the firm. In 1926, a second son, Fred, joined the law firm after his graduation from Notre Dame. Lucinda later became a high school English teacher in the Daviess County schools.

In 1917, when the U.S. entered World War I, Gerald Clements exhibited a single-minded determination to serve in the military, and he joined the Army. In 1918, he was sent to Camp Sherman, Ohio. At this time, Spanish influenza was sweeping the civilian and military population. Gerald was stricken with the flu and was sick for only a few days before he died. In one week, he would have been 24 years old. An impressive memorial service was held in Owensboro, but the family dynamic changed. Maggie and LaVega suffered deeply with this loss. Gerald was a gifted son, even-tempered, very bright and pleasant to be around. He was the delight of his parents. After the funeral and burial, Maggie always wore black, forever mourning the loss of this child.

Daughter Lucinda never married, lived at home and taught high school English in Daviess County. After LaVega died, Lucinda took care of her mother and managed the Highland house and property. Maggie (known in later life as “Mamee”) had become more reclusive and without Lucinda’s help, she would have been unable to continue to live at Highland. Mamee clung to Lucinda and depended on her as she grew older. Lucinda continued teaching, which gave balance to her restricted life.

Fred was fifteen years old when his brother, Gerald, died. He continued his high school education, graduated from Notre Dame, joined the family law firm and married Louise Thomas. The couple had five children: Margaret, Marcella, Beverly, Sam, and Elizabeth (“Betty”). When, Louise was stricken with a serious medical condition, Fred and his daughter Elizabeth moved into Highland with LaVega and Maggie. The other children moved in with Louise’s parents. As Louise’s condition improved, the family moved back together.

Elizabeth “Betty” Clements first married Glen Peck; they had one child, Glenna. In 1954, Betty Clements married Donald Keith Harmon. The couple enjoyed a happy and prosperous partnership. They had five children: Robert, John, Thomas, Theresa “Cindy,” and Isabelle. They cultivated a strong relationship with all of their children and looked forward to and enjoyed visits with them and their grandchildren. They regularly exchanged correspondence with their children, much of which is contained in this collection. For many years, Elizabeth supplemented the correspondence with a monthly family newsletter which she shared with her children. These newsletters served to keep family members current with each other and were much appreciated by her children and extended family members.

COLLECTION NOTE

This collection consists of correspondence, photographs, family history and genealogy of five generations of the Clements family of Owensboro, Kentucky. The bulk of the collection focuses on descendants from the marriage of LaVega Clements and Margaret “Maggie” Holmes Brown. A preliminary inventory and family tree are in Box 1, Folder 1.
