Geography Meet Scheduled For Hill Tomorrow

The annual spring meeting of the Preparatory Council of Geography Teachers will convene tomorrow afternoon, March 29 at 2:30 o'clock in the Theatre. Morning, afternoon and night sessions have been planned for the conviction which will concern us all as to the great need and present world conditions.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 2:30 o'clock with a discussion of the situation in the Middle East. It will be presided over by Professor T. J. Overstreet, superintendent of Haswell High school. Professor Overstreet will be held under the supervision of Miss Mary Lavine, whose Bowling Green Junior High School Geog- raphy Club will take an active part.

At 11 o'clock on our "What Is Geography?" program, Dr. Gilson member of the geography department at Alabama State Teachers College, is slated.

The afternoon schedule, set to begin at 1:30 o'clock, calls for a discussion of the situation in the Far East handled by Jean Keith and Maupey Sublette, members of Western's International Relations Club, Dr. J. H. Potter, Dean of the College, will take the floor on this portion of the session.

A dinner has been scheduled for 6:30 o'clock at the Kentucky hotel.

Plan M. C. Ford Memorial Fund

Plans for the establishment of a student loan fund as a memorial to the late M. C. Ford have been announced by the committee headed by Miles Meredith, superintendent of McCracken County schools. Dr. Ford, who was head of the Oglethorpe Department of Medicine at Western, and an outstanding leader in student educational circles, was killed in an automobile accident last March.

Original plans of the Memorial Committee called for the painting of a life-sized portrait of Dr. Ford. This plan was changed, however, when several educational leaders suggested that a fund be raised to provide needy yet meritorious students in the department formerly served by Dr. Ford.

In making the announcement, Dr. Meredith said:

"The purpose of this fund is to provide needy yet meritorious students in the department formerly served by the late M. C. Ford Memorial Committee. The fund will provide aid for students in the various programs of the College, including departments such as Zoology, Chemistry, and the M. C. Ford Memorial Committee.

"An understanding of this magnitude will be provided a thrifty effort on the part of some few. We are asking everyone to participate in this generous cause by purchasing a thrifty effort on the part of some few. We are asking everyone to participate in this generous cause by purchasing a very modest amount."

"SIAA Champion" Gets New Home

It can now be told—the story of "SIAA Champion" has been renovated and now is an "Englishman Will Air Views On Battle Of Britain"

Talisman to Have Chapel April 2

Next Wednesday at Chapel the 1941 Talisman staff will present the annual yearbook program. Students sitting in buoyant seat numbers will be awarded downtown payments on Talisman as well as tickets to Talisman, dance scheduled for Saturday night, April 5.

The Talisman staff, who are as alert as the Centennial, believe that this fact should be revealed above the Talisman cover. Each person present will be allowed one vote. The staff, however, is not giving back to their characteristically diverse group to define what kind of election this was to be. They would not be classification the election, nor was it being held in this manner.

The Talisman staff of '41 will be present at the annual yearbook program of interest on campus. The program will be given in the Talisman room.

Also at the programs include the "Englishman Will Air Views On Battle Of Britain".
Dispelling The Myth of The "Carefree College Boy"

Uppermost in the minds of probably fifty per cent of the four thousand high school seniors who will be guests on the Hill next Friday will be the desire to see the "carefree college boy". Most of them ever since they have been big enough to go to the movies, listen to the radio, and, in general, have been hearing about the myth that this "college boy" lives a life which runs the gamut from pure joy to the ultimate in rhapso dic. The fact is that it is only people who have never been college or who have been out for a score of years who disseminate this propaganda seemingly has no effect on the minds of the new college students at least. At least it didn't on us.

Perhaps the college boy himself has added his bit to the wild tales. But if he has, it is only because he has learned that the only way to keep the job in what he gets for his salary is to make sure that he and the others expect. He soon learns that no one will believe him, much less listen to him, if he tries to make them believe in what he is doing a serious job of going to college, and the idea of "the carefree college boy".

But the fact remains that the myth of the "carefree college boy" has caused more trouble to one mother and father to put a stop to it down on the matter of their son or daughter going to college. That, as we see the matter, is the biggest argument in favor of such events as Dad's Day, Mother's Day, High School Days, and others, which attract to College Heights those who otherwise would never have the opportunity of "seeing the college life", and therefore never have to live.

So stick around the Hill next Friday. Look up that delegation from home, and make a definite effort to spend your day at the school which attracts students throughout the year. Let that high school senior see that college boys work hard, and that the college environment is not as wild as the case may be, have their domestic troubles with their roommates, get broke, argue with the ones they live with, and anything that students in high school have done.

Everyone has his part in making the annual Senior Day a success. Yours and mine is to try to humanize college life, to try to dispel once and for all that myth of the "carefree college boy".

This Is Big Enough For All Westerners

One of the surest signs of democratic progress is the increasing size of the educational "system" is concern on the part of those in a position to influence it. The admission that a great portion of the probably thousands of deserving students who every year are forced to drop out of college because they are not able to control, simply because they happen not to have the necessary funds, of the College Heights Foundation, one of the most unique student aid organizations in the country. And now comes still better news for Kentucky's youth, this time in the form of an announcement by the M. C. Ford Memorial Committee to the effect that the group is planning to establish a student loan fund. Because of the old Ogden science department head.

Original plans of the committee had called for an endowment of $100,000 at a cost of $500,000. Dr. Ford. Such action, while meeting all the requirements of a memorial, would, nevertheless, have been a departure from tradition and, it seems to us, to the students who had given his utmost...

Don't Stand Up-

We were later informed early this week that the entire staff of the Alumni Association had just beenitching all year to contribute to the college and that the fund raising campaign has been so successful that they had been unable to contribute for the past six months. This is just to let them know that the Alumni Association, like any other organization, will never ask any favors and certainly not carrying implications.

We attempted early this fall to encourage the faculty to help in finding a way to support the college. Some of the students on top of local and national interest. But all our efforts failed. We also acted in writing a periodical column or even "Letters to the Editor." Possibly we were making a mistake in tendering this invitation, because in looking over old Herald files yesterday, we noticed that some such announcement has been made by the editors on various occasions in the past year. The paper's existence. Once there was no response and the other times the editor who made the announcement that we might be able to support the college life in the present condition of the Press.

We must not forget, however, that the fact is that if the student body, who perhaps knew him best, in congratulating the committee on its worthy project of the paper's publication, if the student loan fund in his name is the most any young man who is able to be paid to the man whom years 325 others serving.

Boys (usually sophomores) reading letters (usually Keats) to girls and make sure that they are submitted for publication. We only ask that they contain something that is meaningful and not carrying implications.

Perfection, Precision, "Pim" Add Up To Another Hit

By Jeannia Bridgewell

"We're delighted that you're almost done, Miss Venne," said Mr. Pim, "your work in the past and throughout the first two years of your studies has been admirable. I know you'll be happy to learn that you've been chosen for the lead role in our next production of 'The Importance of Being Earnest.'"

Mr. Pim handed a script to Miss Venne, who looked at it with a smile. "I'm so excited! Will you be in the show too?"

"Mr. Pim, you know I can't possibly do that, but I'm sure I'll enjoy watching you and the others perform."

Mr. Pim nodded. "I'm sure you will. Remember, Miss Venne, the best is yet to come."

Freshman Ball Held
The seventh annual freshman dance of the Presbyterian Class was held in the college gymnasium Friday evening, March 21, from eight o'clock to twelve o'clock.

Music for the occasion was furnished by Roy Holmes and his orchestra with Jean Payne and Benson Logan as the vocalists.

The dance hall was effectively decorated with paper streamers attached to a thirty-foot silver star in the center forming a ceiling six-foot wall, were attached to the streamers outlining the walls. The large silver star changed its colors throughout the evening by means of a flood light from the hand lamp.

The Grand March was held at 9:45 p.m. and was led by the officers of the Presbyterian Class and their dates: Marion Vance, president, and Carolyn Howard led the Grand March. They were followed by James Dickson, vice-president, and Evelyn Dollar; Dorothy Howard, secretary, and George Patterson; Bob Taylor, treasurer, and Mildred Bailleigh.

Carolyn Howard wore blue lace, Evelyn was bare with a pink taffeta blouse with net skirt and silver accessories; Dorothy Howard's dress was pink and black with pink net skirt and silver accessories. Mildred Bailleigh were purple velvet trimmed with chiffon.

The no-break theme included "Only You Are Mine," "Night of Nights," "Home to the One You Love," "A Rhapsody" and "Temujin," "Because of You," "You Waited for Me," and "Bardust." Chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Page, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Garrett, Dr. and Mr. G. B. Jagger, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Billings, and Mr. and Mrs. Wood Vance of Gainesville.

At the same time the dance was held at the gym a party including games and contests was held in the Training School gymnasium, which was decorated in the patriotic motif. It was conducted by Mrs. H. B. Matthews and Mr. H. P. McChesney.

Home Management Tea
The residence of the Home Management House entertained with a tea Thursday afternoon, March 23 Edna Hays, assisted by Hovensa Deaton and Beatrice Wallace, was the hostess for the occasion.

Those present included the following: Mrs. C. M. Howard, Mrs. D. T. Penick, Miss Mollie McLean, Miss Inez Weh, Miss Dorothy Crutchfield, Mrs. H. E. Helen, Dorothy Kelly, Louise Moffett, Geraldine Laron, Ellen Lewis, Elizabeth Smith, Frances Kingery and Mae Price.

Lola and Allene Shiever visited their parents. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Shiever, at Monticello last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. George Horton visited their parents at Monticello last weekend.

Ogden Day Set For Wednesday
The annual Ogden Poudner Days will be observed in chapel Monday, April 7, with an address by Mr. Rooker Murray, A.B., Western, 24.

Mr. Murray began his higher education at Western in 1917 and attended this institution at various intervals until 1924 when he received his degree. During this time he spent the school year of 1923-24 enrolled in Ogden College. He has received his Masters degree and has completed much of his work for his doctorate. He is now superintendent of Oplon City Schools.

Much of his time has been devoted to the American Legion. He has held and still holds a prominent position in that organization.

Franklin Miller, A.B., 37, at present employed as a stenographer on the New York "World Telegram," spoke informally to a group of journalism students Tuesday afternoon.

The first match will be held at Louisville when the Toppers meet the University of Louisville, West- mudnad, April 16. The next oppo-

RAW TEXT END
Although the 1940-41 basketball season has been over for some three months now, memories still pop up every now and then of the games that had been played. One day this week our attention was attracted to an article written in the Caldwell County Times and written by W. E. Blackburn. Headed "Carlisle Towery Has Puttled His Pledge" and sporting a picture of a young man, the Hilltopper is ready to please.

In a blaze of fanfare the equal of which has seldom been accorded any athlete at the close of his college career, Carlisle Towery, basketball meter of national fame, saw fulfilled a promise which he made to his father, then his teacher, when he was a lad of 10 years he walked in defeat from a dirt court on a little one-room school yard in a remote section of Caldwell county at the close of his first basketball season. "They beat us fair and square, man," he said, "but just you wait until I get bigger, I'll show them."

It wasn't a threat, just a promise—not a boast, for he was too modest for that. Neither was it an idle threat. It was just a promise of a boy who loved the feet of the court, and the thrill of the contest, and who recognized his promise, but who believed that time and his own uncomplaining spirit would overcome those limitations. Those of you who read this may like to know the faith in his own destiny, that willingness to recognize his own limitations, lead him to conquer in greener fields, as it led him to conquer the hardwoods. Maybe this is a prophecy, maybe faithful thinking on the part of a wise father.

Perhaps Towery is the only great athlete who holds the distinction of beginning his basketball career on a team composed of both boys and girls. There being enough boys large enough, or sufficiently interested, to make up a team in the little rural school which he attended, he was called up, willing to be haunted, began to cast about for a solution to the problem, and ended up by interesting two of the most athletic of the school in the making of a basketball career. With these two girls he played his first inter-school game of basketball. For two years while attending Quin County high school in this county, these two girls were regulars on the team.

Towery's mother, Mrs. Bellie Towery, is a life long friend of this school, witness, sentimentally bittersweet the beginning of his basketball career, and as such is an 'alumnae' player—when Western State Teachers won the NCAA yearbook at the age of four she bought him his first basketball. Baby Hoops, one nailed to the end of the barn, and another to a line in the barn lot were the goals for his first basketball court.

What a beginning for a lad who was to become an All-American and see his name in most of the large newspapers of the country. John Rockne, B.A. '35, is at present employed at Lake Forest Academy, Lake Forest, Ill. He is teaching mathematics and chemistry.

Read What Towery Has To Say About Them!

"All of my life I have worn shoes from Dollar Brothers' stores. I was reared near Princeton, Ky., where a Dollar Bros. store is located and for the past four years while attending Western Teachers College I have purchased shoes at the Bowling Green store."

"A basketball player must keep his feet in A-1 condition, and during my eight years of basketball I have never been troubled with my feet. I give Dollar Bros. the entire credit...in my estimation they really know how to properly fit shoes."

WHAS's Walsh Praises Towny in Broadcast

Virginia cage kings... but still it also is true that Towny has played an average of only four games this year. Western has five scheduled for the first three seasons.

"The Big Boy covered a market on 8 of those points in 21 games this season. In other words, 17 points every time he stepped onto the floor. Or if you want figure down to microscopic divisions: he scored 35 points in 672 minutes of play—slightly more than half a point every time the second hand passed the minute on your stop clock. Frankly, we don't know exactly why he's failed to add our tribute to the Big Boy. Because it's only another among many. And a goodly portion of the other tributes come from the teams that have faced Towny and those are the sources that really count. It may sound strange, but it's true when we say that the rangy Hilltopper has been recognized by every team that faced him as the greatest player that they ever opposed."

But then, the Big Boy takes such things as those in stride. Of course, it tickles him 18 shades of pink to hear you say, but you can see by watching his game on the court... that he gets the biggest kick in his life out playing basketball. But after all, Carlyle, Towny... All-American or not... is just another fellow, you know..."
