University Relations Staff Take Top Honors In Government Communicators Contest

Three members of the WKU Office of University Relations staff received six awards in the initial Blue Pencil/Gold Screen contest sponsored by the Kentucky Association of Government Communicators.

In all, 62 entries in the professional competition were judged worthy of first place, second place or honorable mention recognition.

Judging was conducted by members of the Minnesota Association of Government Communicators.

Tom Meacham, coordinator of publication services, won a first place Blue Pencil Award in periodicals for a general audience for the WKU Alumni Magazine. Meacham also won second place honors for Western's Greek Life Handbook, for design of the university's 1991-92 campus phone directory, and This is Western, campus viewbook.

WKU Adopts Sexual Harassment Policy

Western's board of Regents at its April 30 meeting approved a new sexual harassment policy for the university.

In a memorandum to all faculty and staff, President Thomas C. Meredith said a copy of the policy will soon be on file with vice presidents, deans, department heads and directors.

The complete policy will be mass distributed before the beginning of the fall semester, Dr. Meredith says.

"The new policy outlines the procedures to follow when one believes that sexual harassment has occurred," he says.

"The University community, above all other places, should be an example of civility among educated individuals," Dr. Meredith said, adding: "This new policy makes it very clear that under no circumstances will sexual harassment be tolerated on the campus at Western Kentucky University."

Commencement 1992

Jackson, Pankratz, Pulsinelli Win Faculty Excellence Awards

Judge Tom Emberton of Edmonton, president of the WKU Alumni Association, presented the three faculty excellence awards at 135th Commencement Exercises Saturday, May 9 in E.A. Diddle Arena.

Receiving silver bowls and a $500 cash prize donated by the Alumni Association were Linda Pulsinelli, assistant professor of mathematics, the Award for Teaching; Dr. Carlton Jackson, professor of history, the Award for Research/Creativity and Dr. Roger Pankratz, professor of teacher education and assistant dean for instruction in the College of Education, Public Service.

Pulsinelli has been a member of the mathematics faculty since 1972. She has served on several campus-wide committees and is co-author of three textbooks.

Jackson joined Western’s history faculty in 1961. He has published eight books since then, and currently has two more in progress. He has served in several countries as a Fulbright Scholar and he currently acts as director of WKU’s Fulbright Program. He has lectured in numerous countries around the world.

Pankratz was honored for his participation in School Reform, in and out of Kentucky. He also provided leadership for the Kentucky Teacher Internship and the Career Ladder Programs. As executive director of the Council on School Performance Standards, Pankratz was primarily responsible for the report of the Governor’s Council on School Performance Standards in 1989 which later became the basis for Kentucky’s Learning Goals in the School Reform Act. He is recognized nationally as a leader in the National Council for Accreditation in Teacher Education (NCATE).
WKU Degrees 2,700

"Kentucky is an exciting place for higher education today and more people are pursuing a degree in Kentucky than ever before," President Thomas C. Meredith said in remarks after the University conferred more than 2,700 degrees during the ceremony.

Dr. Meredith gave the graduates three charges: always see farther by not limiting themselves to what is easily obtained; always give more than is expected, and be humane and caring to their fellow man.

"If you do all three of these, what a wonderful world this will be, and you will have caused it," he said.

In the Bowling Green College of Business Administration, Craig Tackett, finance major of Lancaster was the college scholar.

In the College of Education and Behavioral Sciences, college scholars were Margaret McCamish-Bishop, an early elementary education major from Harned; Amanda Lynne Richardson, an early elementary education major from Brandenburg and Maria "Kay" Thomas, an early elementary education major from Elizabethtown.

In Science, Technology and Health, scholars were: D. Scott Coffey, a chemistry major from Russell Springs; Allison Dobson, a chemistry and biology major from Marrowbone and Michelle Smith, a mathematics and Spanish major from Sweeden.

Scholars in the Potter College of Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences were Lee Huckleberry, a government major from Owensboro Dianna Knothe, a mass communication major from Marathon, Fla.

Coffey and Huckleberry also received the Ogden Trustees' Award for having the highest grade-point average.

Editor's Note: The number of expected graduates published in the April 29 issue of On Campus was 1,400-1,500. This information was provided by the Office of the Registrar, but was the number of graduates expected to participate in the ceremony. It did not indicate total degrees.

WKU Women's Alliance Honors

Ann H. Fields for Contributions to Women

Ann H. Fields, assistant professor of English, is the 1992 WKU Women's alliance winner of the Award for Outstanding Contribution to Women.

She was presented an engraved silver plate at the organization's April meeting by Judy Owen, alliance president.

Fields was recognized for her work with the Philanthropic Educational Organization whose motto is "Women Helping Women."

In the past two years at Western, the PEO has awarded women $8,000 in undergraduate scholarships to non-traditional students and $10,500 to international graduate students, on written agreement that they will return to their homelands and work for women.

Fields was president of the organization in 1991-92 and has served on the PEO's board of directors for seven years.

The annual award presented by the WKU Women's Alliance is given to recognize a member of the WKU community who has made the most significant contribution to others, especially women.
